The Pennsylvania Legislature has passed a general banking law, which has been signed by the Governor. The Press, speaking of its provisions, says:

I nder the new law the power to establish banks will exist wherever the requisite capital can be obtained, and a sufficient amount of lusiness is transacted to render them profitable; but, while this wide extension of banking privileges is made, every possible precaution is taken to guard note holders against loss; and indeed they are more completely and effectually secured than under the old law. Carving in wood is a legitimate mode of ornamentation, and is capable of being rendered rich and effective. Bronze and marble are no less so whon properly applied; but castings from natural objects can never subserve this purpose, because they must always be brought in contact with modelled or mechanically wrought surfaces, with which, however beautiful in themselves, they have no affinity or relation. This is a principle in the State.

Shooting At A Man by a Woman—Executing Scene in a Market House,—On Saturday morning about 10 o'clock, an exciting occurrence took place in the South Second Street Market, between Lombard and South. Jane Meagher, a market woman, occupant of a stall, discharged a pistol at Sergeaut George Bromley of the United States Army, stationed at Fort Midlin, as he was standing in front of her stall. The ball missing its aim, she seized a cleaver, and, rushing towards him, inflicted a cut upon one of his hands before the cold be secured. She was then taken to the she could be secured. She was then taken to the stall of the poor, he replied that what was given to the poor, he replied that what was given to the poor, he replied that what was given to the poor, he replied that what was given to the poor, he replied that what was given to the poor was just eaten, drunk, and gof rid of in the bow for it with nothing to show for it with nothing
